Land Recognition / Reconnaissance du territoire

We give thanks to the Musqueam people for welcoming us on their territory. We will be working diligently to live up to our collective responsibility to honour and respect their protocols and homeland, to build relationships, and to engage meaningfully with their knowledge in this Congress and beyond. Our gratitude extends to the Skwxw_ú7mesh and sə́lílwətaʔ First Nations, for hosting Congress attendees on their unceded territories that we now know to be the city of Vancouver.

Nous remercions les Musqueam de nous accueillir sur leur territoire. Nous travaillerons avec diligence pour assumer notre responsabilité collective d'honorer et de respecter leurs protocoles et leur patrie, d'établir des relations et de contribuer de façon constructive à la mise en valeur de leur savoir dans ce Congrès et au-delà. Notre reconnaissance s'adresse également aux Premières nations Skwxw_ú7mesh (Squamish) et Sə́lílwətaʔ (Tsleil-Waututh) pour l'accueil fait aux congressistes sur leurs territoires non cédés que nous connaissons aujourd'hui sous le nom de ville de Vancouver.

Sexuality Studies Association L'association des études de la sexualité

The Sexuality Studies Association (SSA) is a multi- and interdisciplinary association for scholars, artists, activists and other community members, who have an interest in the teaching and study of sex, sexuality and gender diversity. The SSA provides opportunities to connect with each other and the broader research, artistic, and activist communities, and to mentor and support each other in our work. The SSA shall provide these opportunities by overseeing an email discussion list and web page, and by organizing an annual conference to be held under the auspices of the Congress of the Social Sciences and the Humanities. Membership in the SSA is open to anyone with an interest in issues pertaining to sex, sexuality and gender diversity.

L'association des études de la sexualité (AÉS) est un organisme multi et interdisciplinaire regroupant des chercheurs, des artistes, des militants et d'autres membres de la communauté qui s'intéressent à l'enseignement et à l'étude du sexe, de la sexualité et de la diversité sexuelle. L'AÉS vise à favoriser l'interrelation entre ses membres et à créer des ponts entre eux et les communautés de chercheurs, d'artistes et de militants au sens large, ainsi qu'à leur apporter mentorat et soutien. L'AÉS accomplit ce mandat en administrant une liste de diffusion et de discussion par courriel ainsi qu'une page Web, et en organisant une conférence annuelle qui se tiendra sous les auspices du Congrès des sciences sociales et humaines. L'inscription à l'AÉS est ouverte à toute personne s'intéressant aux questions relatives au sexe, à la sexualité et à la diversité sexuelle.

Jamie-Lee Hamilton
The Golden Age of Sex Work
in the 1970s and 1980s:
Intersections at the Forefront of Building a Contemporary Movement for Gender and Sexual Justice

In this talk, I will discuss my work as a “whore-ganizer” in during the 1970s and early 1980s, a period that I refer to as the ‘golden age of prostitution’ in downtown Vancouver. As a trans, two-spirit, indigenous woman who has worked as a sex worker (now semi-retired), I resist discourses that frame sex work solely in terms of danger and sex workers as being victims or oppressed.

Sex work was, and remains, a criminalized occupation; rendering sex workers vulnerable to different forms of violence. I urge scholars of sexuality studies and sex and gender activists to recognize that such a framing often erases the rich histories of our struggles to work, live and love in ways that challenge the powers that regulate our society.

We were indigenous people, people of color, elderly people, people living with disabilities and people living in poverty coming living in community with one and other. Though we often disagreed on strategies, we also came together across differences to fight against the gentrification of our neighborhood; for sex worker’s rights and for the decriminalization of our work; for accessibility to housing; against police violence and for the government to pay serious attention to the missing and murdered indigenous women who were an integral part of our communities.

In the second half of my talk, I will turn to contemporary battles for sexual and gender justice within Vancouver. I argue that contemporary scholars and activists can learn many lessons from the organizing that shaped the golden age of prostitution within our communities. Such intersectional approaches to activism and refusing to limit our struggles to one identity group or fight is key to the mobilization of contemporary queer world-making projects.

Queer Edge: From Gay to Queer Liberation (76 min)

Director and Presenter / Réalisateur et Presenteur:

Nick Mulé, York University

This feature documentary links the principles and tenets of gay liberation in the Stonewall era to today's queer liberation movement. The film's director will introduce the film providing a contextual background regarding the community-based research project that spawned the film and the link between academia (theory development) and how it is applied in queer activism via grassroots organization Queer Ontario. The film is 75 minutes in length. Implications of the divides within the LGBTQ movement and the links between academia and community activism will be discussed and facilitated in a talkback session between the director and the audience following the screening.

Ce long métrage documentaire relie les principes et les principes de la libération des homosexuels à l'époque de Stonewall au mouvement de libération homosexuel d'aujourd'hui. Le réalisateur présentera le film en fournissant un contexte contextuel au projet de recherche communautaire qui a engendré le film et au lien entre le monde universitaire (développement de la théorie) et son application dans le militantisme homosexuel via l'association populaire Queer Ontario. Le film dure 75 minutes. Les implications des divisions au sein du mouvement LGBTQ et des liens entre le monde universitaire et l'activisme communautaire seront discutés et facilités lors d'une séance de discussion entre le réalisateur et le public qui suivra la projection.
